Overview and Objectives

The aim of this course is to give an introduction to some key cases together with an overview of the concepts and techniques used to evaluate these. The emphasis of this course will be on the practical application of the economic theories and empirical techniques studied earlier in the academic year to specific examples.

Evaluation

At the beginning of the course, the professor will communicate this to the students.

Materials

The list of references for this course will be provided at the beginning of the master.
